FALKLAND CENTRE FOR STEWARDSHIP

Falkland Centre for Stewardship exists to promote the practice of stewardship locally and the philosophy of stewardship in 21st century Scotland and beyond.

We understand stewardship as the act and art of holding, nurturing and revitalising assets for others. The asset in question may be an organisation, a tradition, a building, a landscape, or at the highest level the planet's natural resources and ecosystem.

For us, stewardship is about responsible, long-term management. Good stewards draw from the past, mind the future and always look beyond themselves.

One of our primary responsibilities is the care and revival of the Grade A House of Falkland with its incredible arts and crafts interiors and designed landscape. We also look after much of the Estate surrounding the House of Falkland and over the years have restored many historical pathways. We undertake a continuous programme of regeneration, biodiversity and conservation of the heritage landscape.

We also work in partnership with others to promote the concept, relevance and practical application of stewardship, locally and globally. Throughout the year we offer an exciting range of events including the Big Tent, Scotland's festival of stewardship (www.bigtentfestival.co.uk) and the Annual Stewardship Lecture.
